

The Tarkine Drive

breathtaking wilderness

The Tarkine Drive will guide you through the dramatic and breathtaking wilderness of Tasmania's Tarkine region.

You will experience unique fauna and flora, globally significant rainforests, wild river landscapes and dramatic coastlines.

This scenic drive is full of walks, lookouts, sites and picnic spots for you to explore. You may wish to complete the rainforest and the coastal sections separately as day trips, or take two full days to experience the complete drive. Take your time to view the accompanying map and read about the attractions and drive times when planning your trip.

Protect our wildlife

Many of the animals of the Tarkine are moving about during the day and night. Please drive slowly and help us to protect our precious wildlife.

The coastal landscape provides important feeding and breeding site for shore birds and migratory species. Please ensure you keep below the high tide line whilst access the beach to avoid impacting the birdlife.

The Tarkine is a fire-sensitive environment

- Do not discard cigarette butts
- Use gas barbecues where available
- Only light fires in properly constructed fireplaces and extinguish after use
- Observe all published fire restrictions
- Avoid lighting fires in hot and windy conditions.

Protecting heritage sites

The Tarkine coast particularly contains an extraordinary richness of Aboriginal cultural heritage that was recognised through being listing on the National Heritage List in 2013.

If you come across a heritage site, it is important to follow these practices:

- Leave it undisturbed
- Do not under any circumstances remove anything – this is an offence and fines can be imposed.

Midden material evidence of the use of the Tarkine area by Tasmanian Aboriginal people for thousands of years
