

SUMMER

Summer is the time of year when the valley is bursting with high quality fresh produce.

The crunchiest freshest table grapes are in abundance. Watermelons, rockmelons, tomatoes, sweet corn, mangoes, figs, peaches and apricots are just a few of the treasures grown under clear blue skies in the clean fresh air of the Swan Valley.

Enjoy homemade ice cream created with fresh local fruits at Kato's 3000. Bite into the biggest ruby red figs at Rangeview Vineyards and savour the crisp crunch of a vine ripened melon from one of many roadside stalls.

FRESH TABLE GRAPES

Table grapes have drawn people to the Swan Valley every summer for generations.

Today viticulture is still a major part of the rich rural ambience and economy of the Swan Valley. Table grape season is late-December to mid-April.

Some of the main varieties of table grapes grown in the Swan Valley are Flame Seedless, Crimson Seedless, Scarlotta Seedless®, Sweet Celebration®, Dawn Seedless, Midnight Beauty®, and Autumn Crisp®.

As well as the new wave of seedless grapes, the old world traditional vintage varieties of Muscat, Currants and Cardinals continue to be grown and are still a firm favourite with many people.

SPRING

The first tips of asparagus, one of the most sought after crops of the season, marks the start of Spring. Both white and purple asparagus flourish in the Swan Valley.

Broad beans, peas, zucchini, beetroot, rhubarb and eggplants are in abundance.

Spring wildflowers appear on the scarp. Plum, peach and apricot trees are in full blossom. Our beekeepers will be gathering honey from the bee hives to bring you the freshest most natural honey possible.

PICK YOUR OWN

To pick your own produce straight from the earth or the tree, and bite down on the fruit still warm from the sun, is a taste experience you will never forget.

At Swan Street Vineyard (Jan-April) you can pick your own grapes and figs. Phone to enquire as to what produce is ripe at the vineyard throughout the year.

At Swan Valley Sisters you can (July-Sept) pick your own oranges, lemons and mandarins direct from the orchard, asparagus (Sept-Mar), mangoes and figs (Feb-Mar). Bookings are essential.

At Baudin's Macadamias (Feb-Dec) when you book a tour of the orchard and processing plant, you can pick and take home half a kilo of macadamias.

AUTUMN

The cooler Autumn weather marks the end of vintage for winemakers and the end of harvest season for our table grape growers and some fruit and vegetable growers.

You will see the grape vines being pruned ready for dormancy over the colder winter months.

Other growers are starting to plant peas, broad beans, herbs and other fruits and vegetables in preparation for a Spring harvest.

March is also when pumpkins, mangoes and pomegranates ripen in the Swan Valley. The unique pomegranate fruit, sought after by chefs, is delicious fresh or made into syrup.

WINTER

Winter is the time of the year citrus, oranges, limes, mandarins, lemons and cumquats are all ripening on the trees producing the sweetest and juiciest fruit.

Strawberries are also at their peak during the cooler winter months. Stalls such as West Swan Fresh, Tolich, Nghuen and Belhus Fresh Produce have supplies direct from the fields.

It is also time for olive oils freshly pressed from local trees and purple garlic, full of flavour, is ready for harvest.

OPEN ALL YEAR

The Swan Valley has outlets open all year that offer a wide range of fresh produce.

At Pandemonium Wines you can taste Gin that has been infused with locally grown cumquats. Iconic Australian macadamia nuts can be enjoyed at Bauldin's Cottage where you can also book a tour of the orchard.

Honey fresh from the hive, olive oils, freshly squeezed juices, ciders, goat's milk, nuts and farm fresh eggs with golden yolks are just a few of the products available to be purchased all year round.

Many all year outlets preserve their seasonal produce by way of drying, pickling or preserving. Fruit jams, chilli pastes, pickles and dried grapes can all be found in the valley. At Edgecombe Brothers (est. 1925) they follow family recipes to pickle their estate grown olives, as well as make beetroot relish and delicious grape jam.

Enjoy a regional foodie experience every day. No matter when you visit there will always be something fresh, ripe and in season ready for you to enjoy.

By eating locally grown food you are supporting farmers and producers and investing your food dollars in the community.
